

x-tention becomes minority shareholder in procea Limited

Health IT consultancy procea joins x-tention group as of October 30, 2024

Bournemouth, January 31, 2025 – The x-tention group is strengthening its position in the UK healthcare market, becoming a minority shareholder in health IT consultancy firm procea Limited as of October 30, 2024. With an extensive portfolio of consulting, system integration, and IT services, Kent-based procea supports various players in the UK health and social care sector with their digitalisation projects and advises hospitals and social institutions.

procea: experts in digital transformation in the healthcare system procea specializes in tailored IT solutions for the public and private healthcare sectors. The company provides a wide range of consultancy services with a focus on EPR implementation consulting, digital strategy, clinical systems deployment, business case development, technical design, and advice and guidance. procea works with healthcare organisations to implement and optimize digital solutions to help wider transformation within hospitals. From planning and strategy development to implementation, the launch of new digital services, and benefits realization, the company supports clients at every stage of their digital transformation projects. In collaboration with partners such as Crown Commercial Services, procea primarily serves British NHS Trusts.

“Our broad expertise in the UK healthcare system and our holistic approach to process development empower us to execute digitalisation projects efficiently and effectively,” states Michael Beckett, CEO of procea. “We are excited to offer these services to our customers on an even larger scale as part of the x-tention group.”

x-tention: total solutions provider with an extensive portfolio and international reach

“By investing in procea, we empower our UK customers to leverage the extensive experience of our international group of companies,” says Tony Corkett, Managing Director of x-tention Limited in Bournemouth. “We are proud to collaborate with our colleagues at procea to deliver our comprehensive portfolio of consulting, software, implementation, and operational solutions to the entire UK healthcare market.”

In addition to its shares in procea Limited, the x-tention group has a site in Bournemouth in the south of England, where x-tention Limited was founded in 2019. x-tention Limited focuses on developing the hybrid healthcare integration platform MACH (www.mach.health). The x-tention group also has sites in Austria, Germany, Switzerland, and the USA.
